Ownership of buildings not challenged, says Reform minister

by Jay Kerr-Wilson

It is worship as usual for Reform Church congregations in Highland Grove and Gooderham.

On Sunday, Dec. 2, the church held its first services at the two locations since claiming ownership of the two buildings which formerly housed the United Church.

"There was no problem at all," said Maurice Bradley, the former United Church lay minister who is now serving as clergyman for the Reform Church.

Bradley is one of the large number of area residents who left the United Church in September because of its decision to allow the ordination of practicing homosexuals.

Both the United Church and the Reform Church had been using the buildings in Highland Grove and Gooderham until two weeks ago when United Church members had the locks changed, denying access to the Reform congregations.

At an emergency meeting following the move, Reform Church members passed a resolution assuming ownership of the two buildings and added their own sets of locks to the doors of both buildings.

Although the United Church locks were left in place, the Reform congregation still managed to gain entry to the building for Sunday's services.

Bradley would not reveal how the buildings were entered.

When the Reform congregation gathered for Sunday's service, Bradley says there was no sign of anyone from the United Church.

Bradley has not received any response from the Lindsay Presbytery to his letter outlining the Reform Church's position. He has not made any effort to contact United Church officials.

"As far as we're concerned the whole thing is finalized," he said. "We've taken control of the two buildings and we haven't been challenged."

If the United Church plans to fight to retain ownership of the buildings, Bradley says he thinks he would of heard from the executive by now.

Bruce White, chairman of the Lindsay Presbytery could not be reached for comment.

Drainville aids school funding fight

by Susan Grober

The Haliburton County Board of Education has requested MPP Dennis Drainville's assistance in its fight for funding of additions to Minden and Haliburton's elementary schools.

Last month, Drainville heard the plea for support in a meeting with Trustee Cheryl Murdoch, Chairman Len Salvatori, Director of Education Stuart Baker and Business Administrator Jim Bradley.

"I think we got across to him that our situation is critical and that we've got to get some answers," Murdoch reported at the board's last meeting.

"We're bursting at the seams, and if we don't get help, in time we're going to be in serious trouble," she said.

The group provided Drainville with an update of the board's accommodation needs, and reviewed the capital funding requests made during previous years to the Ministry of Education which have not yet been approved.

Also, Drainville offered the board some advice on how to add more volume to its plea for help. "He seemed to think we should be lobbying a little more strongly with the newspapers and the public," said Murdoch.

There are two accommodation committees now working on plans to build additions to Archie Stouffer and J. Douglas Hodgson Elementary Schools.

Murdoch, who sits on the Minden committee, said an architect's preliminary drawings have been considered. And the committee has staked out the area to be used for the addition to determine the amount of playing field which will be lost.

Wayne Wood reported that the Haliburton committee has reviewed its preliminary drawings, and has developed a list of needs for its new addition.

Both committees have a number of questions for the architect, so Bradley will arrange a meeting for the entire group.

Pair convicted after lengthy trial

Two Willowdale men have been found guilty of stealing a pair of skis, despite an attempt to have the case thrown out of court because of unreasonable delay.

Joseph Pellegrino, 21, and Peter Kastanis, 20, appeared in provincial court in Minden last Wednesday on a number of charges for incidents which occurred in February and March of 1989. Each of the other charges were dismissed because of lack of evidence.

The pair appeared before Judge George Inrig without a lawyer. Pellegrino pleaded not guilty to separate charges of stealing and possessing the skis, and stealing and possessing a wooden toboggan.

NDP victory spurs some locals to Reform

'There is frustration because federal governments are out of touch:' says party president

by Jay Kerr-Wilson

The Reform Party of Canada owes its emergence in Victoria-Haliburton to the New Democratic Party's victory in the provincial election.

Haliburton resident Barry Devolin is the interim president of the Reform Party's fledgling riding association. He says his decision to become involved with the party was in response to the results of the September 6 election.

"It motivated me to action," he said. "I was concerned that voters had elected an NDP government and a local member of parliament."

Devolin says voters in Ontario voted for the NDP, not out of belief for their policies, but because they were looking for an alternative to the Liberals and Conservatives.

Having been intrigued by what he knew of the Reform Party, Devolin contacted party headquarters in Calgary and was put in touch with Bill Gearing, one of the party organizers in Ontario.

In October, Devolin went to Orillia to listen to a speech by Reform leader Preston Manning and says he was very impressed with what he heard. The following weekend he attended a seminar for party organizers in Toronto and decided to leave the Progressive Conservative Party to join the Reform Party.

The party held its first local meeting in Lindsay in early November and attracted about 50 people, 23 of whom bought party memberships.

On Nov. 30, the association held a public information meeting in Haliburton that featured Gearing as guest speaker and sold another 14 memberships.

The association's goal, says Devolin, is to have 200 members by the first general meeting being held in Lindsay on Feb. 8. To that end, several more information meetings are being planned for the riding including one tentatively scheduled for Minden on January 27.

Until the first general meeting, and an election of the executive, the association only exists in an interim basis.

The Reform Party got its start as a regional party in western Canada and began as a response to a perception that the Federal government is out of touch with the western provinces.

"There is frustration among many people because federal governments have become out of touch with what people want," says Devolin.

What took the party's founders by surprise is the rate at which the party has grown and the interest being shown by people in Ontario.

When the Reform Party constitution was drafted, it was decided that organization efforts would be limited to the four western provinces, Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia.

So even though riding associations, like the one in Victoria-Haliburton, are starting to emerge in Ontario, the party will have to amend its constitution before it can field any candidates east of Manitoba.

A general assembly is being held in Saskatoon in April, and Devolin says he believes the constitution will be amended to allow the party to expand to central and eastern Canada.

When the last general assembly was held in June there were only 125 members in Ontario and there didn't appear to be much of a demand. In the past six months the Ontario membership has swollen to over 3,000 with more people signing up daily, says Devolin.

"People are very frustrated with the Conservatives and Brian Mulroney and they've decided that Jean Chretien and the Liberals are not an option they want to consider," he said. "Over the summer a lot of issues, like Oka, Meech Lake, the senate and the GST, came to a head. The Ontario election was the straw that broke the camel's back."

Catching the Drifter

Drifter, the official mascot of the Minden Sled Dog Derby, accompanied local musher Val Loughheed on a visit with some of the students of Archie Stouffer Elementary School last Wednesday to help the children with ideas for their Sled Dog Derby posters and demonstrate some of his famous hospitality by giving out free hugs.

Reform Party ahead in many parts of western Canada

A party committee which studied the possibility of eastern expansion presented its report supporting the idea of expanding the party Devolin says Preston and the other executive members also favour the proposal.

Until the party constitution is amended, Devolin says the Victoria-Haliburton association can still sell memberships and function as a full-fledged riding association in all aspects except that it could not nominate a candidate in a general election.

With the next election still two years away, Devolin says there is no immediate need for the party to change the constitution before April.

Popular opinion polls put the Reform Party ahead of both the Liberals and Conservatives in most parts of western Canada and that popularity could translate to as many as 40 seats in the next election.

With the strength of the Bloc Quebecois in Quebec, Devolin says it's not inconceivable that the Reform Party could hold the balance of power in a minority government situation.

One of the key issues the Reform Party stresses is the need to Canada's national deficit and reduce the accumulated debt. Devolin says the party wants to target the increasing cost of maintaining the federal bureaucracy by cutting operation budgets by as much as 10 per cent across the board.

The party also wants to see some significant changes to Canada's parliamentary system including an elected senate that would address the regional differences in the country.

Devolin thinks the party's platform reflects the beliefs of many Canadians and the goal now is to get the message

"What we're trying to do in Victoria-Haliburton is to inform people what we're all about and that we're not just a protest movement. We have a very detailed and clear vision of what we want for Canada."

Trial delay was not unreasonable: judge

Along with similar theft and possession charges, Kastanis pleaded not guilty to assault with a weapon, possessing a weapon for a dangerous purpose, pointing a firearm, and damaging a chimney and light fixtures with a pellet rifle.

Crown Attorney Rick Bagg called a number of witnesses, starting with Maple Sands Resort owner Curtis Eastmure, who owns the two pairs of stolen skis.

Eastmure identified the $150 pair of the cross-country skis which were presented as evidence, and pointed out Pellegrino and Kastanis as two men who were constructing a cottage near the Stanhope resort at the time of the theft. A second pair of skis, valued at about $300, has not been recovered.

Next, resort employee Douglas Conway McGuire was called to the stand. McGuire identified Pellegrino and Kastanis, saying the pair visited the resort a night or two before the theft was discovered.

After the pair left, McGuire inspected the grounds and found footprints in the snow leading to where the skis are kept, and water on the floor inside. That Saturday, the skis were found missing, he testified.

Michael James Mueller then approached the stand. Mueller was staying with Pellegrino, Kastanis and four others when the group worked on construction of the cottage over a five-month period.

Mueller offered a shaky testimony, first saying he never saw the skis nor heard discussion of them. When Bagg pointed out this testimony was inconsistent with a statement Mueller gave to the police, he asked that the witness be declared unwilling to testify.

"Are you afraid of either of the two accused?" asked Bagg.

Mueller said he isn't, and added that he was lying to the police officer in his statement. Then he admitted it wasn't a lie, and said he told his mother the pair had the skis and that he saw them burying them in the snow.

"If you told about the skis, they said they would kill you," said Bagg.

"No," said Mueller. "I'm not afraid of them. I thought it was them at first (burying the skis), but it wasn't them."

Mueller also recalled an incident where he and Kastanis both had pellet rifles and he got shot in the leg. "We were just fooling around," said Mueller. "I shot him (Kastanis) in the leg, too."

Then the pair played a game of chicken, where Kastanis chased Mueller with the gun and Mueller ran to Peter Fearrey's car so he wouldn't get shot again, court was told.

Fearrey, who was doing a construction job at a nearby cottage, took the stand and said this was true, but he couldn't identify Kastanis as the assailant.

In another incident, Fearrey said Mueller pointed a firearm at him from a distance of 100 feet, and that someone else used a firearm to shoot at the cottage. But he couldn't recognize that person.

The investigating officer, Constable Brian Brattengeier, took the stand and recounted a telephone conversation with Kastanis. "I suggested he return the skis (before appearing in court)."

When Kastanis learned there were no guarantees he'd be judged less severely if the skis were returned, he said "I might as well keep the skis," testified Brattengeier.

After a recess, Pellegrino told Judge Inrig he thought the case would be thrown out of court because of an unreasonable delay for trial. This was in light of the Supreme Court of Canada's Askov decision, which outlines a six-to-eight-month delay caused by the system as "the outside limits" of a reasonable waiting time.

Because it was a complicated matter which involved an investigation, and the accused suffered no inconvenience, Judge Inrig decided the delay wasn't unreasonable.

"The Askov decision not only deals with a time factor, but other factors as well," he said. "I'm not of the opinion that this is an Askov matter."

'You said you'd break my legs inside the truck this morning,' a witness testified. 'You asked me to lie.'

Pellegrino was then permitted to recall Mueller to the stand in order to determine whether he is a credible witness.

"Are you afraid of me?" Pellegrino asked Mueller.

"You said you'd break my legs inside the truck this morning," said Mueller. "You asked me to lie, and to blame everything on Tim."

Timothy S. Raycraft, 22, and his 24-year-old brother were also to appear in court that day on a number of related charges. However, neither turned up.

"You said you broke Tim's legs so he couldn't come today, and he's in the hospital," continued Mueller.

Finally, Pellegrino took the stand to offer his testimony. Pellegrino said he and a number of others in the construction group would return to Toronto on the weekends, and that he wasn't in Stanhope when the skis were stolen.

Pellegrino also testified that Timothy Raycraft told him he stole the skis. "I said, no, we'll get in trouble, so he buried them in the snow."

As for the toboggan found on Pellegrino's nearby property, the accused said the others "borrowed" it to transport tools and that he had nothing to do with it.

Because of the number of people working at the cottage, Judge Inrig decided evidence was insufficient to prove who stole the toboggan.

Judge Inrig also dismissed the weapons charges against Kastanis after declaring Mueller's evidence as unreliable.

However, the judge charged both with theft under $1,000 because Kastanis admitted to having the skis, and because McGuire's testimony provided sufficient evidence.

Sentencing will be postponed until Judge Inrig can obtain a pre-sentence report for both accused.

Pellegrino has a previous record of convictions: in 1986 in youth court for mischief, 1987 for assault of a police officer, and 1989 for theft under $1,000. Kastanis was convicted of theft under $1,000 in 1989.

Editorial

Meech Lake, the GST, Oka, troops in the Middle East, politicians who care little of what their constituents think.

They're all compelling reasons for voters to be discontented with the policies of mainstream parties, but, is it enough to push the Reform Party of Preston Manning into a power-broking position in two years time?

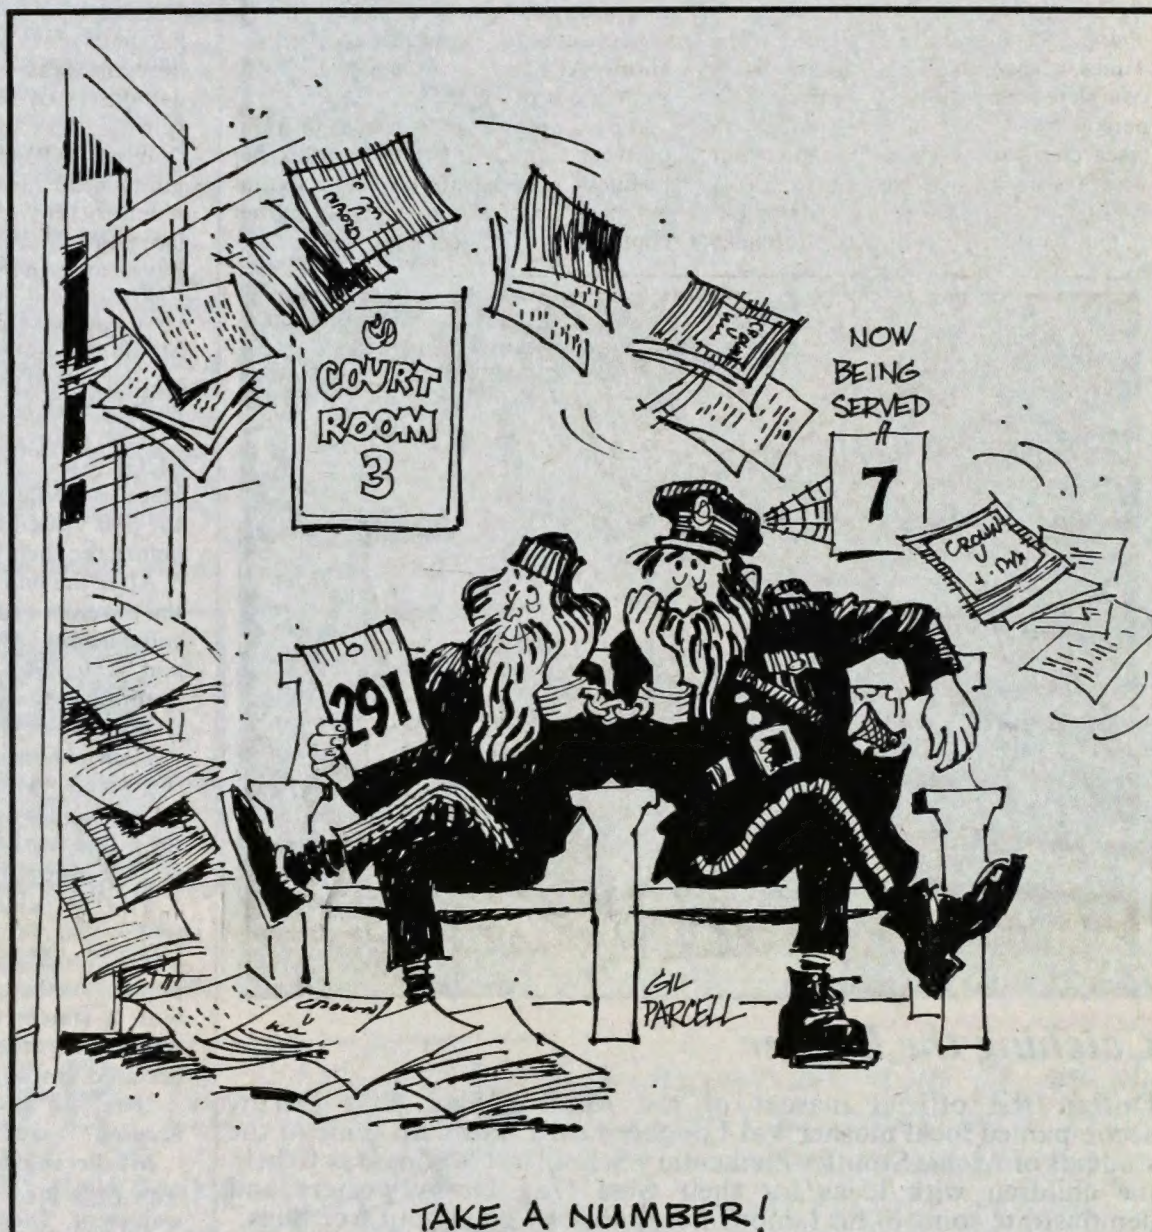

Obviously some local voters believe the potential is there and have made a break with the Conservatives and Liberals to join the fledgling political organization.

They point out that the disenchantment they felt was exhibited by Ontario voters last fall when they turfed the Liberals for the closest thing this province has for a major turn around, the NDP.

But the Reform Party will have some major hurdles to overcome if it is to become the 'new broom'. The core of the party is in Western Canada where other populist movements have flourished and floundered. It can trace much of its fervent support to an anti-central Canada bias, a feeling so strong that its constitution limits the Reform Party to running candidates only in those ridings west of the Ontario/Manitoba border.

With a clause like that, one has to wonder how seriously the party is in its attempt to attract members in central and eastern Canada and, when and if the constitution is altered to welcome all Canadians, will that move not erode the strong western support which has provided the base for the party's growth.

The emergence of the Reform Party is obviously a signal that Canadians are not happy with what the mainstream political parties have to offer. It will be interesting to see if that support will be there when the next election is called and how the party will cleanse itself of the strong dose of regional parochialism which has fed its rapid growth.

Today's cars can't beat this space-age hot rod

In our worship of the machine, we have settled for something less than a full life, something that is hardly even a tenth of life, or a hundredth of a life. We have confused progress with mechanization.

— Lewis Mumford

Do you remember the machines they promised us? You'd have to be a certain age to recall them — say, 40 or over. I used to read all about them in Popular Mechanics. That magazine had a near-fetish about the "automobiles of the future". Time and again the editors would devote full cover stories to rhapsodic predictions of just how wonderful transportation was soon going to be. Graphic artists were commissioned to sketch Star Trekish metropolises bristling with futuristic hives and domes, all interlaced with translucent walkways and moving sidewalks. Whizzing through the air in all directions you could see the "automobiles" of the future — compact saucers really, about the size of a mid-size American car, but capable of travelling overland or through the air. Each of the cars had a plastic bubble of a cockpit, and in that cockpit you could usually see a grinning, middle-class nuclear family of the future, out for a care-free week-end spin.

I used to moon over those articles in Popular Mechanics back in the late '50's. They always assured us this fantastic world was just around the corner.

Black 'n White

by Arthur Black

We'd all be flitting about in jetcars well before the turn of the century — by 1980 at the very latest.

Well, it's 1990, and I often think of those decade-overdue Jetcars as my hopelessly old-fashioned, terminally pavement-bound Toyota noses into the morning rush hour traffic going to the city. I've usually got plenty of time to think, because there's no rush at all in my rush hour. I'm fused into a miles-long traffic jam that's going nowhere.

Still, it's a chance to work out some great finger-drum solos on the steering wheel while I listen to the car radio. During the really bad traffic jams I even get to read a bit of the morning paper.

Which is where I came across the story about Paul Moller and his M200X.

That's the rather un-catchy name Paul's bestowed on his invention. There's a photograph of him in the M200X that accompanies the newspaper story.

I would have named his invention differently.

I would have called it The Jetcar.

Because that's what it is, alright. Ten years late and not quite as Swanky as the Popular Mechanics artists conception, but it's a jetcar, and Paul Moller, a professor of aeronautics, is in the cockpit, hovering about ten feet off the ground while newspaper reporters take pictures.

The M200X is only the beginning, says Moller. His California company is already working on a model that will carry four passengers at 500 miles per hour as high as 30,000 feet and as far as 800 miles on a single tank of gas.

Just as Popular Mechanics predicted back in the '50's!

So how come I'm not excited?

Perhaps it's the price tag — Moller says a copy of his M200X will cost about the same as a helicopter — and that's a lot for a craft that so far has only managed to hover about 30 feet off the ground for less than three minutes.

Or maybe it's the realization that Jetcars will only make driving worse, not better.

It's bad enough being stuck to the pavement, worrying about tanker trucks coming up your tailpipe and muscle cars passing you on a hill. Can you imagine being out for a romantic drive with your Sweet Patootie when suddenly the blood drains from her face, her eyes bulge like Westinghouse 60-Watt's and she shrieks: "YUPPIE ON HIS CARPHONE AT TWELVE O'CLOCK HIGH!"

You go ahead Mr. Moller. I'll sit this one out.

Column on bilingualism 'written out of ignorance'

Editor:

The article "Canada's attitude is changing" by Arthur Black, (The Times, November 12, 1990), is a complete fabrication. It is written by a person who not only has failed to research the subject of bilingualism but who has no knowledge whatsoever of APEC.

The world is full of Arthur Blacks who in one way or another disseminate misinformation. Some do it deliberately, others out of ignorance. Black's column about APEC, it would appear, was written out of ignorance.

APEC's philosophy upholds the right of every Canadian to carry on his/her business, social, fraternal and religious activities in the language of his/her choice. In this respect we agree with the businessman in Newport, Vermont, U.S.A., who was learning the French language for business reasons. The decision was a private matter. It demonstrated the true entrepreneurial spirit.

What APEC opposes is official bilingualism, legislated by the government, thereby enforcing the use of two languages. In doing so the government has created an artificial need for the use of the French language in Canada. Such legislation is totally unrealistic in a country which is 76% English-speaking and 24% French-speaking. This is particularly true when we see that 20% of the Canadian population who speak French live in the province of Quebec. This means that the remaining 4% who speak French are spread all over

Teens need more than entertainment

Editor:

When I picked up The Times this week I was not really surprised to read of car thefts and vandalism in our community, though it saddened me. Then I read your editorial calling for more "entertainment" for our young people. As one who has worked with teenagers since I was a teenager I see a far greater need than entertainment for our youth.

They need to be challenged and motivated to strive for the best. They need to be taught not just the ABC's but how to live, how to be an asset to their community, their school, their family, and find real fulfillment in their lives. They need to learn to accept themselves and to reach out to others with love and kindness. They need to know someone cares, is there to listen and can give them counsel about the source of life. Young people need a purpose, as we all do, and they need to know that God has a purpose for them and loves them.

That is why we at "High Life" provide more than just entertainment, although fun is never lacking in our get togethers. Together we grapple with important issues facing teens today — drugs, sex, alcohol, peer pressure, self-acceptance, relationships and God's role in their lives. Having a "good time" is important but we must give our young people the proper tools with which to build their lives. If we neglect this crucial aspect of training our young people will only become frustrated, disillusioned, young adults.

Please Mr. Editor, let the folks of Minden know that there is a youth group available that is not only entertaining but enriching to our most valuable asset ... the next generation. It's called "High Life" and all are welcome. Mrs. Beth Fast, Minden.

NOTE: "High Life" is a youth program presented by the Minden Bible Church. Regular meetings are every Thursday at 6:30 p.m. at the church and social events are held once a month. For more information contact Beth Fast at 286-3912.

A lifetime remembered in family's dusty photographs

I put on my coat to leave. Baritte, three months old, had just fallen asleep. Looking at her and her mother I thought how hard it was to grasp the reality that my youngest sister was a new mother, and I, her oldest brother was an uncle. A sweeping sense of shifting generations passed through my mind like a video on fast forward and rewind at the same time.

Sorouja told me about a photo Dad gave her. She pointed it out.

She didn't have to. I was already staring at it — at them. Mom and Dad and I were grouped around a threadbare Christmas tree. I must have been three years old.

For a few eternal seconds I was time-travelling to the basement apartment of a three storey walkup in Kingston. It must have been one of those rare days when Dad was home. He worked hard. Three jobs at one time kept the family going then. Working was (and still is) the essence of his dignity.

I remember the smells of the mat damp with boot drippings. I remember my mother sad, worried,

Directions

by Edward Moll

trapped, temperamental. I remember the stale smell of cigarette smoke and beer, the angry words, the rolled-up newspaper, my mother crying, a neighbour coming in to help, and me bewildered, wondering...

A truck rumbles past and I am jolted back to Guelph, my sister, and a sleeping child. In the picture Dad is staring proudly past the camera. Mom has one of those sad, enigmatic expressions on her face speaking silently of possibilities in life that would never be hers. She looks directly at the camera into my eyes, it seems. There I am, looking at myself, eternally bewildered, not so much frightened as expecting something to happen.

I put down the photograph. I have a thickness in my throat that won't go away. Sorouja says it is one of the most haunting pictures she has ever seen. She shows me another one: a wedding photo of my mother and father. At the time the picture was taken they were barely a year in Canada from Holland. Were they happy? The grain of the picture masks their expressions.

Driving home I thought about where I came from and how I got to where I am. How strange and paradoxical are the gifts of God! Through all the bittersweet ironies of life, love given, love received, offences taken, grudges kept, I still had a family.

Mom, dead now for almost ten years, still hangs around in the closets of memory. Dad is working and painting his heart out in London. My brother Rick is living in Kingston with his girlfriend and, well, we're still not on speaking terms. Sorouja, her husband Neil and Baritte are making a home in Guelph. And of course Elaine, Simon and Stan are with me in Minden. I wouldn't be here if it weren't for them and so many others.

Life still goes on. We'd be dead without it. God be praised.

English language alliance has no anti-French bias, says president

Canada in nine provinces and two territories. There are more non-French-speaking people in the province of Quebec than there are French-speaking people outside Quebec.

APEC opposes official bilingualism because it creates a special status for one ethnic group, and thereby discriminates against the forty to fifty other ethnic groups in this country. It is impossible to foster unity in a country which creates a special status for one group within it. Pierre Trudeau, in addressing the National Association of Newspaper Editors in Washington in 1966, said:

"There is no way two ethnic groups in one country can be made equal before the law ... and to say 'it is possible' is to sow the seeds of destruction."

This is what the government of Canada seems bent on doing.

Since 1969 discrimination against English speaking people in the federal civil service in hiring and promotion practices is exemplified in the phrase "it is not enough to be bilingual, you must be mother-tongue French". If anyone wants to see the results of this discrimination they need only follow the reports of the Public Service Commission from year to year.

The 1989 report (recently issued) shows the Anglophone, Francophone distribution in 81 departments. Although Francophones make up only 24% of the population of Canada, in 61 departments the number of Francophones exceeds 24% of the total staff. There are 21 departments with over 50% of the employees Francophone, one of which is 100% Francophone. A further 31 departments have between 30% to 50% Francophone staff. Such was not the case in 1968 prior to the passing of the Official Languages Act. This imbalance is a direct result of the discriminatory and biased implementation of that Act.

The Federal government gratuitously funds minority language groups and communities across Canada. In the fiscal year 1989-90 the funding amounted to $43.75 million. For every $10 spent on French language groups only $1 was spent on English groups. These figures can be verified through the records of the Secretary of State. The federal government spends more money in one month on official bilingualism than it does in one year on overcoming illiteracy in 25% of the Canadian population.

In addition the federal and provincial governments pour hundreds of millions of dollars annually into the teaching of the French language while those who are endeavouring to teach English as a second language to immigrants are crying for money.

With the passing of the French Language Services Act special status for Francophones has been created at the provincial level in Ontario. On November 15, 1989, writing in the North Bay Nugget, John R. Hunt wrote in his column, "On the Rocks", "...the most powerful agency in the Ontario government is now the Office of Francophone Affairs." He refers to a new, powerful and privileged class of civil servants and language police, some of whom were recruited in Quebec. These statements are borne out in Government directives, which state all government legislation and programs must be examined to determine how the Francophone Community in Ontario will be affected before the legislation is presented to the Legislature, or a program implemented.

With the government engaging in this type of action is it any wonder that special interest groups such as APEC are formed? Without APEC's research and publication none of these matters would ever be brought to the attention of the public. The media does not appear to be doing any research of its own, but quietly acquiesces in the government's language policy.

APEC has published close to two hundred newsletters in its thirteen years of existence, and I challenge Arthur Black to stop name calling and talking in generalities and point out in APEC's written material the anti-French bias he claims exists. It is always the government which comes under attack for the discriminatory implementation of its language policy. In addition APEC has never advocated nor supported the separation of Quebec from Canada.

Black's reference to bilingualism in Belgium, Luxembourg and Switzerland is a further indication that he writes from ignorance, not knowledge. None of these countries is a truly bilingual country. In fact unilingualism prevails in specific areas of each country. Belgium, for instance, is divided into three sections for language purposes, Flemish, French and Bilingual. Within the Bilingual section there is continual friction and conflict. The other two sections are unilingual.

What is Bill 109 of Quebec? I must confess I have never heard of it. I do know that Quebec's infamous Bill making the province unilingual French is Bill 101, and the "inside outside sign law" which denies to English speaking people rights guaranteed by the Charter of Rights not only of Canada but of the province of Quebec, is known as Bill 178. Perhaps Arthur Black would be willing to advise us about Bill 109.

The English language is one of the most versatile and adaptable languages the world has ever known. It is capable of absorbing words from other languages, and when it does the word becomes an English word, whatever its origin or root. This adaptability is one of the reasons English is the preferred language of the world today.

With as much respect as it is possible to muster I would suggest that in future it would be advisable for Arthur Black to do a more in depth study of the subject about which he is writing. All Arthur Black has succeeded in doing is muddying the waters and showing his bias.

Gun control won't halt violence

Editor:

It is with deep sadness that I remember the sick individual that murdered 14 young ladies in Montreal one year ago. There is no positive thought that can be brought out of this horror. I am also saddened that students and most of the media have stressed the demand for more gun control.

Politicians all clamored on the band wagon today demanding the government make Canada a safer place for women.

I would expect this stupidity from Ottawa but I am surprised at the students and media. When will we as a society learn that restricting things only invites low life types to supply the now illegal product? This also gives the worst members of society an opportunity to profit from increased demand caused by those who desire that which is illegal.

I ask you to look at the cause and effect of laws against drugs, extortion or prostitution.

When will we learn?

Karate Kids: Respect and discipline top the list of lessons at karate club in Minden

by Susan Grober

You could feel the energy at the Spot 97 Fitness Club last Saturday as students of Minden Shotokan Karate chopped, kicked and chanted their way through a grading and clinic.

Rolan Abraham just opened the club last July, but it didn't take long for his students to do him proud.

The members took part in their first grading and a clinic held by Shihan Takemasa Okuyama, a seventh dan black belt and head of the International Karate Association in Canada.

Along with Shihan Okuyama, some high ranking experts from Port Perry and Bowmanville helped out at the clinic.

The clinic was held for each of Abraham's 17 students, aged from five years old all the way up to 18, and many parents watched in awe.

Also, each of the 10 participating in the grading managed to earn their yellow belt, the second level of the sport (beginners start with a white belt).

"It's very good for them," says Abraham. "It's not bad for five months of training."

The students practice twice a week for three hours a week. "Practice is more important than earning a belt," says Abraham, who took four years to earn his black belt.

In January, Abraham would like to run a self-defense course for women, and men, if there's an interest.

The karate classes are held at the Sunny Variety on Wednesdays and Fridays: from 5 to 6:30 for junior beginners, 6:30 to 8 for junior advanced, and 8 to 9:30 for adults.

"They learn very good," says Abraham. "And they have nice parents, all of them. I'm amazed at that. I like the parents to come and watch."

Many parents are impressed at how Abraham stresses the gentler aspects of the karate sport.

"For the kids, I want to teach more respect and discipline in their lives," he says. "Sometimes, kids don't have respect for adults. But they learn that here."

"This is a sport that's not about fighting. There is no contact. It's different from boxing or kickboxing or full-contact karate."

Actually, on the list of sports which cause injuries, Abraham says karate is 25th. "Football or hockey is much worse."

And when it comes to respect, the students can learn a lot just from Abraham's example.

"Everybody is the same to me, no matter who they are," he says. "Sometimes a teacher will favour a student, but for me they're all the same. I have the same respect for each student, and they respect each other."

Six of the students are now training an extra day to participate in a tournament at the Rumball Centre for the Deaf in Toronto on December 15. "They are working very hard," says Abraham.

Maybe some of these students will become martial arts experts... then they could give the Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles a run for their money.

Students of Minden's karate club learned some new tricks at a clinic run last Saturday by Shihan Takemasa Okuyama, a seventh dan black belt and head of the International Karate Association in Canada.

Haliburton man gets 30 days for unprovoked assault

A 19-year-old Haliburton man has been sentenced to 30 days in jail for an unprovoked assault causing bodily harm in July, 1989.

Charged with assault causing bodily harm, Sean Douglas Billings pleaded guilty to a lesser charge of simple assault against Robert Andrew Snelling when he appeared in provincial court in Minden last Wednesday. Billings must serve his sentence intermittently on weekends beginning December 7.

The incident occurred outside the Northwood Inn in Haliburton, where Billings had been drinking with a group of friends.

Billings was unprovoked when he started the incident inside the Northwood and told Snelling he didn't like him, said Crown Attorney Rick Bagg. The friends then crowded around and encouraged Billings to fight Snelling.

Snelling tried to escape, and was in the back seat of Kathy Elder's car when Billings pulled him out and punched him in the face, court was told.

A scuffle ensued, and others become involved in the altercation when Billings began to lose the fight. Snelling was punched and kicked in the face and body by three people, and received seven stitches to his nose, four in his lip, a black eye, swollen face and numerous cuts.

Elder appeared as a witness, and said she's known Billings all his life and was surprised by the incident.

Billings' defence lawyer said the accused was only involved in the punching, not the kicking, and that the occurrence was "quite out of character." Billings has since apologized to Snelling, whose injuries took two months to heal, he said.

"Although he was clearly the instigator," the lawyer asked that Judge George Inrig consider a community service order instead of incarceration. He said Billings already spent some time in custody as a result of the charge, and asked that he be ordered to receive treatment for an alcohol problem.

Bagg told the judge that the co-accuseds were sentenced to three months and two months in jail, and that a 30-day intermittent sentence wouldn't be too severe.

Billings has a record as a young offender in 1987, and in 1990 escaped lawful custody.

Along with his 30-day sentence, Billings was put on one year's probation, during which time he cannot consume alcohol and must take counselling for alcoholism.

Santa finds his way to Minden

Minden got the Christmas season off to a bang with the Community Christmas weekend. Shoppers packed area stores during Friday night's Moonlight Madness sale and Saturday's Santa Claus Parade attracted an even larger crowd than last year. On Sunday more than 100 people gathered in front of the CIBC on Main Street to decorate one of the large fir trees, sing Christmas carols and enjoy other's company. The following are the results of the Lions' Club parade float competition: Service Clubs, first - Minden Kinsmen/Kinettes, second - Minden 2nd Brownies, third - Minden Playschool. Commercial entries, first - Westside Jug City, second - Kawartha Dairy, third - Head Inn.

Clockwise from top: St. Nick was in a jolly mood as he made his way through town in his place of honour at the end of the parade, Simon Moll gets a boost while placing his decoration on the Christmas tree downtown on Sunday. The crowd spilled off the sidewalk and on to the streets as anxious children and parents awaited the start of the parade.

Clockwise from right: Lisa Ranson plays princess aboard the Kawartha Dairy Castle, colourfully clad kiddies lined the streets, Michele Maher of the Haliburton County Equestrian Club, the HHSS Pick-up Quartet, and Shona and Cindy Malloy help put the finishing touches on the tree outside the CIBC during Sunday's community decoration.

Redmen goalie Hans Fluegel was instrumental in the HHSS victory Wednesday. He deftly turned aside numerous Fenelon Fall shots to help secure the Redmen's 7-2 win. Even when caught sitting down on the job, as in this shot, he was blocking Fenelon shots.

Sid Stamp Fuels topples Home Hardware team, 7-5

That's right sportsfans, the impossible has finally happened.

The mighty Home Hardware hockey team, after compiling a 7-0 record finally lost on Dec. 3. The David that slew this arena Goliath was Sid Stamp Fuels, by a score of 7-5.

The two teams battled it out in a very close game that was tied at 2-2 at the end of the first period and tied at 4-4 at the end of the second period.

Stamp took the lead at the start of the third period, but Home came back to tie it up again. Dave Schell finally scored the game-winner and Ivan Ingram netted the insurance goal.

Ingram lead the Stamp scorers with five goals and Schell scored the other two.

Scoring for Home were Jeff Stamp and

Redmen rejoice 7-2 victory

Outstanding netminding by Hans Fluegel and excellent play making by the remainder of the team, combined to give the HHSS Redmen a 7-2 victory Wednesday over the Fenelon Falls Falcons.

The Redmen dominated the play from the opening second, notching five goals in the first period, and one each in the second and third frames. While they maintained control throughout most of the game, the Fenelon team managed a few rallies, particularly when the hosts were short-handed. The offensives were turned aside by Redmen goalie Hans Fluegel who was outstanding in blocking a barrage from the Falcon forwards.

The Redmen also demonstrated excellent discipline as they were taunted on a number of occasions. Rather than being enticed into a cheap penalty by Fenelon players, they kept their minds on hockey. The scoreboard reflected this effort.

Jason Billings and John Vuksic led the scoring for the Redmen with a pair each. Billings opened the scoring with back-to-back goals at 7:56 and 7:15 of the first period. Assist on the first goal went to Wyatt Nesbitt while Jaime Dollo assisted on the second. Shawn Perrin and John Vuksic set up Dollo at 2:37, while Vuksic connected 14 seconds later with assist going to Perrin. Chris Bradford rounded out the first period with a goal at 1:56 with Dollo and Vuksic getting the assists.

The only Redmen goal in the second period came from Corbie Kent at 13:16. Dollo and Vuksic assisted. Fenelon scored at 10:06 and the six minute mark for their only goals of the game.

The Redmen sealed their win with a third period goal from Vuksic at 6:42. Kent picked up the assist.

This was the second win for the Redmen this season. Tuesday evening they played Thomas A. Stewart Secondary School in Peterborough and lost by a close 8 - 7 margin.

The Redmen host two home games this week. Tonight, December 10, Adam Scott Secondary School of Peterborough will play at the Dysart Arena. Game time is 8 p.m. The team also hosts Port Hope Collegiate Wednesday night with game time 7:30 p.m.

Minden Pee Wees a bad host to Haliburton with 9-3 win

On Tuesday, December 6th the Minden PeeWee B team played host to the Haliburton team.

Minden came out very strong and were able to score their first goal within minutes of the first period, when Travis Willison scored on a pass by Marty Dettman.

This was to be the only goal scored in the first period, with both teams defense and goalies playing excellently.

After trying time and again Minden was able to

New employee will benefit ASES

An administrative assistant will be hired in the new year to look after the Archie Stouffer Primary School in the old Dollo's IGA building in Minden.

Because Archie Stouffer's 600 students and staff are split between two buildings, Principal McKay Brydon has found himself to be spread too thin traveling back and forth to oversee both schools, said Trustee Wally Bunn at the last board meeting.

Bunn chaired the ad hoc committee which studied the problem, and recommended that the board hire an assistant.

"With two schools to run, no one is really in charge at the IGA school," he said.

Brydon visits the primary school two or three times a week, and must be there each time supplies are ordered, or whenever a student gets hurt, said Bunn.

The administrative assistant will be in charge of the primary school's 116 Kindergarten and Grade 1 students, effective January 1, 1991.

Dorset acid rain report

The following report on precipitation events was recorded at the Ministry of Environment acid rain testing station in Dorset and compiled by Environment Canada.

This report covers the period of November 25 to December 1.

November 26, 22 mm rain, 4.2 pH, from southern Ontario, Ohio and Indiana.

November 27, 21 mm

rain, 4.2 pH, from southern Ontario and southern Michigan.

November 28, 8 mm mixed rain and snow, 4.5 pH, from southwestern Ontario, southern Michigan, Ohio and Indiana.

November 29, 1 cm snow, 4.6 pH, from Lake Huron and northern Michigan.

Environmental damage is usually observed in sensitive areas regularly receiving precipitation with pH less than 4.7. Readings of 4.0 pH or less are considered dangerous. The lower the reading, the more acidic the precipitation.

Minden Pee Wees beat Haliburton, 9-3

score a second goal when Bobby Griffin scored on a great pass by Marty Dettman.

Minden kept the pressure on which led to a goal scored by Todd Redgrave unassisted.

Haliburton tried hard to break through Minden's defense and it paid off as they sneaked through to score their first goal.

During the third period Haliburton stepped up the play but Minden proved to be the stronger team with a 4th goal from Bobby Griffin (the only girl on the team), assisted by Andrew Crego.

Minden was on a roll and we were to see Todd Redgrave score his second goal unassisted.

Haliburton were not going to be left out as they came through to score a second goal.

Both teams surprised the supporters with the way they kept up the pace which led Minden to score their sixth goal when Todd Redgrave scored a third goal unassisted.

Then Haliburton came back with a third goal, which gave them a boost.

Tuesday night was Todd Redgrave's night as we were to see him score two more goals, his fourth goal was scored from a great pass by Andrew Crego and his fifth goal was unassisted.

Minden kept the pressure on right to the last seconds of play and were able to score a ninth goal when Benji Crego scored unassisted.

The final score - Minden 9, Haliburton 3.

Bring your bags to recycling depot

by Tom O'Shaughnessy

Can plastic bags be recycled? How? What? Where? These questions are yet to be answered by some people, but for others like Matthew Heffer it's becoming a way of life.

Once again Matthew Heffer of Archie Stouffer Elementary School has organized another depot, which involves the whole school. You may wonder how a student could initiate a large project like plastic bag recycling. Matthew has organized five depots during the past three years. It takes a great deal of hard work and commitment, but he's always ready for the challenge.

Through the Enrichment program, facilitated by Bernie Davis, Matthew designed a very unique and attractive logo which states the date, time and place of the depots.

Students bring their plastic bags, turned inside out to the site location. Matthew stresses that the bags "must" be turned inside out in case of any loose receipts, paper, etc.

After the depot is over, which usually lasts two to three hours, Murray Clarke who has devoted much of his personal time to these projects picks up the bags and transports them to Toronto. There they are melted into small pellets and then melted again into new products. Matthew believes these kind of depots reduce the tremendous amounts of garbage that occupy landfill sites. Last year at one depot they collected over 200 pounds of plastic bags and Matthew hopes this year to help as much again.

GST?

THIS WEEK YOU ASKED THE GST CONSUMER INFORMATION OFFICE.

Q: I'm thinking of buying a new car in 1991. How will the proposed GST affect prices?

A: The outgoing Federal Sales Tax (FST) is now part of the price of new cars. So, while they will be fully taxed at 7% in 1991, the expected effect of replacing the FST with the GST on the average $22,000 mid-size car is a reduction of around $850.

Q: My son has figured out it will cost $500 in lumber to build a dock at our cottage if he bought it now. How much will that lumber cost with the proposed GST?

A: You can expect to pay about $512 for that same amount of lumber for personal use based solely on the changeover from the FST to the GST.

Q: I know the proposed GST won't apply to city bus fares but I take the commuter train to work. Will I have to pay GST?

A: No. Daily commuter trains are considered a municipal transit service, so fares are exempt from GST.

We're here to answer your questions about how the GST will affect prices. Call us toll-free Monday to Friday 9am-9pm. Ask for your free copy of the "Consumer's Guide to the GST and Prices."

School association plans pay equity fund

A legal fund will be set up by the Ontario Public School Boards' Association (OPSBA) to offset any costs incurred through the process of establishing pay equity.

The project is to provide $50,000 in centralized legal funding, and the Haliburton County Board of Education has agreed to contribute to this fund.

There should be 38 boards across the province taking part in the project, Trustee Nancy Stinson told the board at its last meeting. The amount of money provided will be proportional to the size of each board.

At present, the OPSBA is working with the Federation of Women Teachers' Association of Ontario in the development of a pay equity plan, said Stinson.

Further meetings are planned by the group to develop a pay equity plan that could be used provincially.

New Times cartoonist puts experiences to paper

Starting this week, The Times editorial page will take on a different look as Gil Parcell replaces Anker Odum as the paper's regular cartoonist.

Parcell, and his wife Mary, moved up to Minden from Scarborough in October to be near their daughter Jeanne Hughes and her family.

Born and raised in Liverpool, England, Parcell joined the Royal Air Force in 1940 at the age of 18 and served six years as an aircraft mechanic, including four years in the Middle East where he doubled as the squadron artist and cartoonist.

In 1947, Parcell and his wife emigrated to Canada where he worked as an artist with the Timothy Eaton Co. He began freelancing as an advertising artist in 1957 and continued in that field until 1979 when he began doing business magazine illustration and cartooning with Wadham Publications and Southam among others.

Over the years his cartoons have appeared in magazines like Soaring, Free Flight, Canadian Yachting and Chip Chats. He has also syndicated cartoons for weekly papers in Canada and the United States.

Odum is still residing in Minden but has retired from page four in order to pursue other artistic endeavours.

A year in the life...

After a near-fatal car accident last year, Jarett Gentle has traveled far on the long and winding road to recovery

by Susan Grober

To his peers, 17-year-old Jarett Gentle is something of a hero.

While the worst most teenagers have to deal with are zits, parents and grades, this high school student managed to battle for his life after a car accident last year which left him in a coma for six weeks and damaged his body and brain.

His father, Joseph, can pinpoint the time of the accident immediately. On October 6, 1989 at 4:15 p.m., a pick-up truck collided head-on with Jarett's car on South Lake Road.

"I was going to town to pick up my friend so we could go to Lindsay and pick up my girlfriend," says Jarett. "It was a Friday. Just after the football game. We won, too."

Five minutes after Jarett left home, Joseph got a phone call from someone who lived nearby. "When somebody calls you up and says your son was in a head-on collision, what do you do? That shock alone was enough because I was preparing everything for Thanksgiving Day."

At the Minden Hospital, Jarett was attended to by Dr. Antony Holliday-Rhodes, who later traveled with Jarett and his father in an ambulance to Lindsay. "Dr. Holliday-Rhodes made a brilliant effort," Joseph says with admiration.

An air ambulance wasn't available, so a small plane was rented at the Lindsay airport to take Jarett to the airport at Centre Island.

It was almost seven hours before he finally reached St. Michael's Hospital in Toronto — the hospital where Jarett was born, and the hospital where he would start a new life.

High school studies have been made a little easier for Jarett Gentle with this lap-top computer provided by the Rotary Club of Minden.

"When he got down there, there was no hope," says Joseph. "He was on the borderline. He was gone..."

"The two doctors at St. Mike's said it was a mess," Joseph remembers. "I said whatever way he comes out of it, he's coming home. They looked at each other and said okay, and then they went to it."

Doctors operated to relieve the pressure on Jarett's brain. For six weeks after the operation, he remained in a coma.

"It was dubious during the point he was coming out of the coma, because we had no way of knowing what damage existed," says Joseph. "Maybe he wouldn't be able to see, hear, walk or talk. Maybe he'd be a vegetable."

It was a joyous moment when Jarett came out of the coma. "They called you the miracle boy," his father tells him.

Jarett offers a wide, dimpled grin when he hears that term. "I just gotta laugh at it. No one ever thinks of himself as a miracle."

"It was, boy, I'm telling you," says Joseph, who traveled to the Toronto hospital each day of his son's stay. "You had a whole chain of prayers for you in this township, all the way down to Lindsay. I believe in the prayers of the people."

Doctors also removed Jarett's spleen. And, eventually, a tracheostomy was performed to open his windpipe.

"I was unconscious for six weeks, so my lungs were filled up with mucous," he says. Jarett had contracted pneumonia while he was comatose and doctors had him breathing through tubes.

"You had more tubes and monitors hooked up to you than I think the spacemen had up there," Joseph says with a laugh. "I would never want to live that over again."

"Me neither," adds Jarett.

"Well, you're living it now."

It's true, the struggle is far from over. Jarett suffered brain damage affecting his speech and memory. And his right side, which at first was totally useless, is still weak, making it difficult to write.

"The short memory part of his brain is totally gone," says Joseph. "He'll wake up in the morning and say, 'What day is this?' He won't remember yesterday. Now it's just a matter of getting another part of the brain to take over."

Jarett sees a speech therapist from the Five Counties Support Services once every two weeks at the high school. After the accident, Jarett's speech was muffled and hard to understand, says Joseph.

When he was at St. Michael's, Jarett acted as a guinea pig in an experimental test for a new IBM computer designed to note where defects in speech are by sound and tone.

The speech therapist would say a sentence into a voice sensor machine, which would pick out volume and pitch on a graph. Then Jarett would speak and try to match his voice with hers.

"It was good because I could see it," says Jarett. "You don't hear yourself when you talk, you just think about what you're saying. You don't know if your voice is actually that bad."

Jarett left St. Michael's a week before last Christmas. Shortly after his return, Jarett was sent to the Hugh McMillan Rehabilitation Centre, near Sunnybrook Hospital, for an additional four months.

Patients who have sustained head and back injuries are treated at the residence. "This place is the place to go when there's hope," says Joseph. "But it's still considered a hospital."

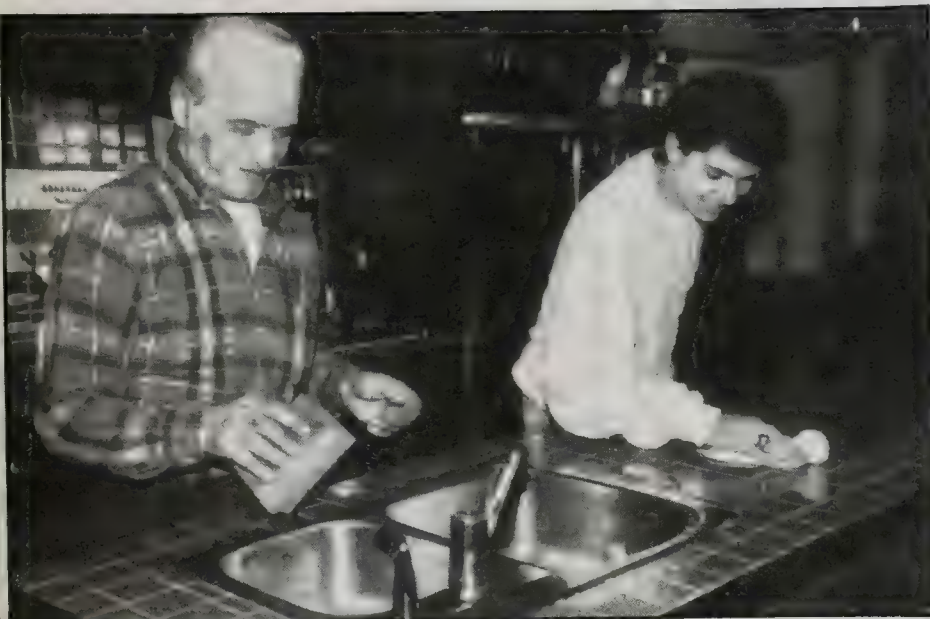

Jarett received a lot of attention during his stay in hospital. "It's gratifying to see patients get constant contact with therapists and doctors," says his father. "In most places you have an operation and it's goodbye. They don't see you anymore."

"When we came back to St. Mike's, everything stopped, as if Jarett were a celebrity," he adds. "He's not just another patient who has come and gone. And he still goes down for six-month check-ups to see the neurosurgeon. It's never-ending."

Jarett also required physical therapy, including push-ups, sit-ups, swimming, biking, jogging and weight-lifting. This exercise helped bring him up from 97 pounds after the accident, to a muscular 170 pounds.

Today, Jarett plays volleyball and acts as a trainer on the football team at high school (a job where he must carry 20 pounds of water on each arm down the hill to the football field). "At least I'm out there with the team, but I want

(more on page 30)

Joseph Gentle says kitchen duties are just one aspect of his son's rehabilitation. Jarett, at times, would beg to differ.

Taking slow steps on road to recovery

to be out there on the field," he says.

Before the accident, Jarett was on the football team for three years. But upon his return to school, he wasn't allowed any body contact and had to give up his favourite sport... for now, at least.

"The thing that really got me was I was told that before each game the team and Mr. Brohman (vice-principal and coach) said a prayer for me, and the school said prayers over the PA system," says Jarett. "I was touched."

Last school year, Jarett spent three weeks sitting in on classes before exams to get re-acquainted. And this September he took on a mixed load of Grade 11, 12 and 13 courses.

Because he had difficulty taking notes, the Rotary Club of Minden donated an IBM compatible lap-top computer which Jarett uses in school and at home.

And he's working hard to keep up. Since Grade 7, Jarett was an honour student. "It really bugs me, because I always got better grades than my sister, Jennifer."

Jarett's sister is at Western and plans to study engineering. "Now she's really going to bug me because I'm doing worse than her."

"It's a long road back, isn't it," says his father. "I've seen the frustrations and I've seen the determinations along that road."

One pressing frustration is that Jarett must start from scratch before he can get a driver's licence again.

"I just don't feel like I'm free to do what I want," he says. "I know it's stupid, but I don't feel free to have a girlfriend because I can't pick her up and drive her around. I need my dad, or her, to drive me."

Another frustration is work. For six weeks in the summer, Jarett took part in an occupational therapy program at Dollo's IGA.

But he used to be the assistant manager at the Esso station, and was in charge at nights and on weekends. "Going from that to packing groceries is a big step."

"Just be thankful," reminds Joseph. "It was a big accomplishment, and you deserve a pat on the back. Phase one is taken care of, now you enter phase two."

Adolescents don't usually take things one step at a time, however, and Jarett is no exception. "I want to do it now, and not put it off for the future. Because there might not be a future."

Jarett wants to get everything done now because he's been faced with his own mortality.

In the long run, even Superman was mortal. And Jarett can tell you, it isn't easy being Superman.

After all, wasn't it his alter ego, Clark Kent, who got the girl? Lois Lane may have admired her hero, but a man of steel can be somewhat intimidating.

Jarett has faced a similar struggle in regaining acceptance from his peers. They love and admire him, but some wonder if he has changed.

Sometimes Jarett is labelled with the term handicapped, which he doesn't feel applies. "When I think of a handicapped person, I don't think of it relating to myself. It seems alien to say that about me."

"That's positive thinking, which is good," adds Joseph. "I don't want anyone pitying Jarett. He's still the same person. Treat him as a normal person."

Still, Jarett has received a wealth of support over the past year from doctors, therapists, teachers, students and friends. "I want to express my gratitude to all the people who helped me."

And he hopes everyone will enjoy their upcoming Christmas as much as he will, just 14 months after the accident that changed his life.

What's in store for the future? "Right now, I don't really know," says Jarett. "I'm excelling in my languages now, because the part of my brain that was hurt controls the maths and sciences. So the literature side is picking up."

In the meantime, Jarett will take things one step at a time, working hard to clear every hurdle he meets.

Report from Ottawa

With Bill Scott, MP

The Government is proposing changes to improve how income tax incentives for charities are administered.

The proposed changes are outlined in the discussion paper, "A Better Tax Administration in Support of Charities," released by National Revenue Minister Otto Jelinek on November 20.

In Canada, more than 62,000 registered charities rely on volunteers to help provide a variety of services in areas of welfare, education, religion, health and other recognized charitable purposes.

Charities registered with Revenue Canada, Taxation, can issue receipts for donations, and donors may in turn use these receipts for income tax purposes. Registered charities are exempt from income tax. Canadians donate approximately $3 billion to charities each year.

The proposed changes are intended to improve and further encourage charitable activity and charitable giving. This would be accomplished by making the tax administration for charities more effective while emphasizing openness, simplicity and fairness.

The proposed changes fall into three general categories:

— Clarifying the law on charitable purposes and activities.

— Promoting more openness and improved accountability.

— Streamlining the administrative process to make it simpler and fairer.

The most significant changes relate to the greater openness that will prevail. There are also proposals aimed at increasing the accuracy of the annual information return for charities and the ability of charities to comply with the law.

People who are interested in the proposals for improving the tax administration of charities can obtain a copy of the discussion paper from their district office of Revenue Canada, Taxation.

It's Christmas

by Yvonne Guida

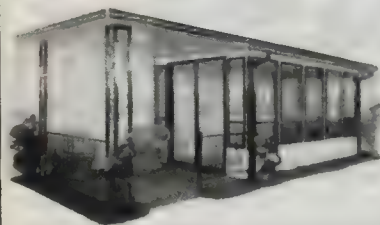

The night is still
And dark and deep
Except for the brilliance of stars—
Oh how beautiful they are!
It's Christmas time
In a shaky world
And no one knows
What will be.
Will it be war or peace?
But looking to the sky
A poor bewildered mortal
Such as I
And mortals over all the world

Look to the sky
For assurance.
From that shining star
Much brighter than the rest
He is there!
It is the moment of birth—
The gold, and frankincense and myrrh,
The stall, the animals, the
Wise men
Know, that this was so.
God's in his Heaven for infinity,
And all will be right with
His world

For He will be there
To fulfill His destiny
To save us all
From our stupidity.
He looks from on high
And smiles a little
For we will prevail
In spite of our travail
God bless us everyone
As a little child prayed
Years ago.
And as the star in the Heavens fades
It's Christmas morn
And Christ is born!
Merry Christmas to all.

Around the County Town

by Jean Sears (call 286-1538)

Sure was a busy time last weekend, Midnight Madness on Friday, then a very colourful Santa Claus Parade by Lions Club. Jean Lacey presented the Lions Club Trophy for best Service Club Float to Kinsmen-Kinettes. Then Sunday afternoon, choir members and many others gathered on "The Green" and sang Christmas carols as the natural tree was decorated and lighted up.

Helen Burk spent the weekend in Oshawa and picked up Jane Symonds who had just returned after a Florida holiday.

Joan and Alec Beattie of Richmond Hill and Val and Fred Hewitt and family of Barrie were recent guests with Joyce Hewitt.

Visiting with Barbara Berry has been a girl friend from Scotland, Agnes Burns.

Kids' Korner

by Jean Lacey

Hi Kids!
Here is another puzzle for you with a word list. Look in the diagram of letters for the words given in the list. Find them by reading up, down, forward, backward and diagonally. They are all in a straight line and do not skip letters.

Circle the words in the diagram and cross it off the list. It's as easy as that. Have fun!

Hyland Crest shows appreciation to its many volunteers

Hello readers. Here I am again with my account of a very satisfying and enjoyable afternoon. Hyland Crest Senior Citizens' Home held an Appreciation Tea for all the people of this area, who have for any reason helped with their time and talent to make it possible for we seniors to do many things that would be impossible without you. In a plain word a "volunteer". Few people have any idea how many volunteers we need to cover our needs.

To show our appreciation all volunteers were invited to a tea in the auditorium prepared and arranged by Doris Robertson - Activities Manager, Llyn Shirley - Dietary Supervisor, Melinda O'Mara - Nursing Supervisor, and Rheta Jones - Administrator. The tea was a buffet with a beautiful and bounteous lunch, and a lovely cake decorated by Llyn Shirley.

During the tea Miss Glenna Beckham from Haliburton played beautiful older songs on the piano, that were appreciated by everyone.

There was a short program during the tea where Rheta Jones - Administrator welcomed everyone.

The Chairman of Committee of Management Bern Berry and Chief Administrator Officer, representing the county of Haliburton

Senior League

by Winnifred Barnum

Gary McKnight each had a few words of thanks for all volunteers.

Rheta Jones introduced Doris Robertson who is our Activities Director to lead the rest of the program. She read a poem "The Road to Happiness" and then introduced Mrs. Evelyn Coleman, as volunteer speaker. She spoke of different incidents in her life that aided her to become a volunteer.

Doris introduced some of the resident volunteers.

Mrs. Mary Oliver - Secretary of Residents Council and member of newly formed Century Club. Mrs. Winnifred Barnum - President of Residents Council and also writes "Senior League", Alice Todd - who sets up the Chapel. Jean Taylor, Nora Groves and Mary Smith who set up the tables for Tea Parties. Mr. Gordon Kidd - Vocalist and Minden Hearing Aid Expert.

Thursday afternoon was Tea Party, which was a birthday party for those who had a birthday in November - they were - Mary McKelvey, Mable Buttery, Gladys Whyte and Ellen Bastien. The ladies who served the lunch and beautiful birthday cake were Minden Line Dancers, Nancy Gayton, Pat Mintz, Mitze Alzner, Irene Fuhr, Doreen Sandala and Nancy Cook. As well as providing us with a lovely tea, they also danced for us. Thank you very much we enjoyed the afternoon immensely.

Thursday evening Marg Prentice called bingo for us and we thank her heartily.

Has everyone noticed our beautifully decorated Christmas tree in the angle between the two wings facing downtown? Last year we had a nice tree on the same spot. We really enjoyed that one but it had to be removed because it was dead. One day last spring we heard a noise outside and there was a tree and all the equipment to plant it. It was planted and it grew all summer. Last week our maintenance men had the pleasure of decorating it and it can be seen from downtown. All this was made possible by Don Alton, Francis Walker and Alex Little. Each Christmas we will remember and be thankful to these men and Doris. We express our thanks again.

Friday the Happy Hour was held in the auditorium. The entertainment was by Ursula Neitch playing an accordion, Doris - piano, Billie Moore also played piano. The volunteers were Ellen and Don Holden, Bonnie Fullan and Mary Guillemin. Thank you all very much.

Sunday night the Chapel service was conducted by Rev. John Burgess and Alice Jones played the organ. Thank you both.

The first of the week the weather was so bad we had no volunteers, so Tuesday afternoon Doris showed two movies. The first was "Portrait of Grandpa Doc" and the second was "Little Drummer Boy". Thank you Doris.

The Tuesday Chapel Service was conducted by Rev. Brian Parker - Minden Anglican Church which was followed by communion service.

Quite wet month but certainly much better than last November. Less rain and slighter average temperature. This month we had more than average show of beautiful sunsets. Mother Nature put on a great show.

Trivia: November 26, 1984 dense fog and freezing temperatures created treacherous driving conditions during the morning rush hour in southern Ontario. A 100 car pile up occurred along the Q.E.W. This is not news, just a possible recurrence any time but especially for the next five months.

Bible study cancelled during storm

Monday because of the storm Evelyn Coleman had to cancel the bible study at 1:00 p.m. We had Residents Council at 2:00 p.m., Administrator Rheta Jones was unable to attend due to a previous engagement. Doris took notes on our discussions for her Ilyn

Shirley - Dietary - answered several questions giving a better perspective on how she hopes to improve relations between residents and dietary.

I was wondering why every volunteer except the Resident Volunteers were mentioned in the paper. Surely people realize how much residents who are able, do, just to help carry on.

Tuesday Melinda O'Mara on her way home, kindly gave me a lift to Norma and Terry's for dinner. Terry took me to Lakeside Baptist Church for their Christmas Party. They had a Christmas service followed by lunch and exchanging of gifts. Terry drove me back to Hyland Crest.

Wednesday night there was a service by Pastor Murray in the main lounge. Thank you very much.
